StarCash Network - Money Supply Growth Rates [block times & rewards]

Every 67 seconds (block time), the StarCash network issues 1.27 new STARS in the form of a block reward. This results in a 1290 blocks per day, or 1638 coins per day, and 597,772 coins per year.

Growth Rate % in Money Supply can be calculated in the following way:
597,772 / 791,537 (initial supply) = 75.5% increase in coins in the first year.
597,772 / 1,389,309 = 43% increase in coins in the second year, and so on.

This is a RELATIVELY LOW INFLATION RATE when compared to most other cryptocurrencies. This slower release of coins over time allows StarCash to maintain a more stable price, and also make rising prices easier to acheive. With fewer coins being issued relative to current supply, there are fewer tokens available for sale. Making them more scarce. Furthermore, the distribution of coins occurs more gradually over a longer period of time, thereby enabling a broader base of adoption, and preventing a small number of holders from controlling the supply.

StarBank Platform

StarCash Alogorithmic Volatility Management Platform

The StarBank platform tackles the issue of high volatility by controlling circulating money supply and regulating demand and supply at exchanges. To do that, it uses certain algorithms that encourage coin holders to buy, sell or keep their assets depending on the balance of supply and demand at the given time. Those algorithms resemble activity of central banks that maintain the cost of their national currency, so they are collectively known as the StarBank. For the functioning of an algorithm of modifying interest rates on "docking" operations, in real-time the following steps are to be completed:

Develop the StarBank Platform interface in an easy-to-use format, to enable StarCash holders to earn extra returns on their balance by adding the balance to the reserve balance. To develop weekly, monthly and yearly returns based on competitive returns in the marketplace.
